THE HOPE OF HOLMES.

His Confidence That He Will Secure a New Trial.

WHY HE GAVE NO TESTIMONY.

The Prisoner Himself Decided Not to Go on the Stand—Detective Geyer Discusses Holmes' Crimes—Museum Managers After Ghastly Relics—Mrs. Pitezel's Future.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—One thing about the conviction of murderer Holmes that has greatly impressed those who have had business with him since that solemn scene on Saturday night, when the jury pronounced his fate, is his wonderful display of nerve. There may be signs of physical weakening, but the man's self possession has not forsaken him. He is buoyed up by the hope that he will secure a new trial.

Holmes refuses to see any one but his counsel, but in response to a request for an interview sent out this message: "I do not want to discuss the verdict, except to say again that it surprised me and was not justified by the evidence. I have not quarreled with my lawyers over the admissibility of admitting my last statement, which I wrote on Wednesday night. But I still think it might have helped the defense. It was the perfect truth. My lawyers advised me against taking any further part in the case in that way and I gave in. This is all I have to say, except to ask that you quote me correctly. A great deal has been attributed to me in the newspapers that was neither fair nor true."

Attorney Rotan, who conducted the greater portion of the defense of Holmes, seems to be confident that he will get a new trial from the supreme court. He talks very earnestly on the matter and it is for possible in view of his manner not to believe him when he says that he has not the least doubt of the ex-convicted man's innocence. He knows that in this the majority is against him, but he clings to his opinion, and he thinks he has a better opportunity to judge of the case than many others. It is evident that the convict's lawyers do not expect Judge Arnold to grant a new trial, but they will argue that motion before they appeal. Such a step is necessary to complete the record.

Mr. Rotan says there is not the least foundation for the story that Holmes wanted to go upon the witness stand. He decided that point for himself, and his attorneys had nothing to do with it. "His judgment was, in my opinion, correct," said Mr. Rotan. "He had made many statements at different times, and he would have been sharply cross examined in many things that, if not evidence, would have had a bad effect.

"Holmes is an innocent man," said Mr. Rotan, "as far as this crime is concerned. But he knew on Friday night that the verdict would be conviction. He said to me: 'Rotan, old man, I am more sorry for you than I am for myself. You haven't had the chance to handle this case as it should be handled.'

"I said to him: 'Don't you mind about me. I am more concerned about you than I am about myself.' So you see all this talk about Holmes being confident of acquittal is like much other stuff that has been printed—all bosh. He saw from the start that the case was going against him, and he knew all the time that he was innocent of murder."

Speaking of the wonderful nerve of the man, Mr. Rotan said it was really remarkable. He didn't at any time lose control of his nerves, and he has an abiding faith in his ultimate acquittal on this charge.

Mr. Shoemaker, one of Holmes' counsel, who did not conduct the trial through illness, said that if a new trial were granted—and they would make, to this end, representations of the important evidence they would offer—they would be able to show that Pitezel had made at least three attempts to commit suicide since the alleged murder on Sept. 2, 1894, and for which Holmes now stands convicted."

District Attorney Graham said today that he could think of nothing new in relation to the Holmes trial that would prove of interest, and that nothing new was expected to transpire until the case comes up for argument for a new trial on the 18th. He declares that in his opinion Holmes will never leave this city.

Although not permitted to offer it as evidence, Detective Geyer stated that his work upon the case impressed him with the belief that Holmes had intended to kill Mrs. Pitezel and Dessie and would have accomplished this but for the care exercised by Mrs. Pitezel in handling the dynamite at Burlington, and his arrest in Boston before he could fully carry out his schemes. In addition to this Geyer said that he has not a doubt that Holmes would have closed his catalogue of crime in this country by killing Miss Yoke and her mother. Then, after realizing upon the property he would inherit in event of their deaths, he intended to go to Europe. This intention he had admitted.

"Yesterday Mrs. Pitezel and her daughter called upon her lawyer, Thomas A. Fahey, and were presented with return tickets to Gilead, Ills., although they will not leave the city until tomorrow. Seated in her lawyer's office, Mrs. Pitezel was a different woman from the wreck who stood under the eyes of a trained nurse at the trial. The lines of care had not left her face. She has only partly recovered strength, but her features were lighted with the consoling thought that the doors of her husband and her children would be avenged. It is not possible Mr. Fahey said, that she will ever recover from the effects of her experience since meeting Holmes, but she seems prepared which for her.

She would not say what her future course in life would be. She had made no plans except that knowing that in her destitute circumstances she will be obliged to raise a family for herself and her children. "Dessie," she said, "is now a big girl, and has said that she would aid me in every way. I can make a home. I think that I will go somewhere near to the dressmaking or millinery trade when we get to Galena."

To Reorganize China's Army.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Colonel Von Hanneken, the German officer who was military assistant to Viceroy Li Hung Chang, has arrived in this city from China, charged with a special mission and fully empowered to arrange for the reorganization of the Chinese army on the Russian, French or German model.

Killed by a Falling Scaffold.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—Jesse Vickers was instantly killed and Henry K. Higgins fatally hurt yesterday by the falling of a scaffold on which they were engaged in decorating in the residence of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, on Charles street, this city.

Down an Elevator Shaft to Death.

ALBANY, Nov. 5.—William D Morange, one of the best known residents of this city, fell down the elevator shaft in The Argus building, and suffered injuries from which he died at the hospital. Mr. Morange was a lawyer by profession, and was about 55 years old. He also had some reputation as a writer.

A West Virginia Stage Coach Held Up.

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Three heavily armed men held up a stage coach near this place in true bandit style. A posse of officers pursued the highwaymen into Pennsylvania, where all trace was lost. They are thought to be a part of the old Cooley gang of outlaws.

THE GREAT NORTHERN STRIKE.

Trouble Reported at Various Points Along the Line.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 5.—In the great strike of the American Railway union on the Great Northern road eighteen months ago the start was almost exactly similar to what is claimed to be a new strike at this time. Then, as now, the officials of the road united up to the time when the road was finally tied in asserting that there was no strike and no cause for one. Then, as now, the men went out at various points along the line in a somewhat scattering manner. Just what may be the outcome it is difficult to say, but that there will be some trouble seems now assured, in view of the reports from along the line today.

At this point it is thought necessary to place watchmen on the new bridge for protection. At Devils Lake, N. D., the city council met there last night and decided to do all in their power to protect the property of the railroad and to suppress any incipient riots. Out in Montana trouble was reported at several points. At Havre, the railroad wires were cut and orders for the divisions that center there were interfered with. It is understood several arrests followed. At Kalispel, Mont., four engines were "killed," and as a result A. R. U. Director Goodwin and five other men were arrested and are now in jail. At Columbia Falls, near Kalispel, an unsuccessful attempt was made to burn the Great Northern bridge.

Child Assaulted and Murdered.

OMAHA, Nov. 5.—At 2 o'clock in the morning the police found the dead body of Ida Gaskin, aged 11, in a vacant room on Howard street. The little girl had been criminally assaulted and choked to death, her throat showing plainly where the fingers had left their imprint. George Morgan, Edward Sanford and George Booker are under arrest, charged with the crime. Booker is a driver of a coal wagon and had been a friend of the Gaskin family. Morgan is a collarmaker by trade, but has been out of employment for some time. Sanford works for the Crane Elevator company. Morgan's clothing was covered with blood when arrested, and he was hurriedly removed to the penitentiary to prevent a lynching. Later a committee appointed by those favoring lynching went through the jail to satisfy the people that the murderer was not there.

Vendig Blames Julian.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Three of the Hot Springs prize fighting contingent—Joseph H. Vendig, manager of the ill fated Florida Athletic club; James Kennedy, manager of the Empire Athletic club, and "Charley" White, one of Fitzsimmons' trainers—arrived in New York last night. Vendig laid the blame for the fiasco upon Julian, who, he said, had mismanaged Fitzsimmons' affairs from the beginning. He asserted his belief that Fitzsimmons was not afraid to meet Corbett, and that the fight would have taken place but for Julian's poor work. He blamed Julian for the failure of Fitzsimmons to take a special train for Hot Springs, and thus evade the officers. Vendig said there was yet hope that the fight may be pulled off at El Paso.

The Preacher Stole Coal.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 5.—The little meeting house of the colored Baptists here was closed on Sunday. The following placard was tacked on the door: "There will be no service in our church today, as our most beloved pastor has been suddenly called away." Rev. Joseph White, the pastor, had been arrested in the act of stealing coal from a dealer named Wight. He was humming a hymn as he filled his pails. He confessed the theft, saying: "My church has been greatly reduced in finances of late, and we had no coal to heat the church. My conscience told me that it was no sin to get coal when it was going to a place where good was to be done."

Poisoned Six for Insurance.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The trial was opened yesterday at Prenzlow of a storekeeper named Herman Springstein and his married sister, Augusta Bock, on the charge of poisoning Springstein's wife last March, and also of having committed a series of murders between the years 1888 and 1892, during which Springstein's parents, Augusta Bock's husband, her son and another woman are said to have been poisoned with the view of obtaining the money for which their lives were insured.

A Child Brutally Assaulted.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 5.—Bertha, the 14-year-old daughter of Jacob McCue, a well to do farmer of East Lampeter township, near here, was feloniously assaulted by Barton Harsh, a farm laborer employed by McCue. After brutally maltreating the child and inflicting injuries that left her in a critical condition, Harsh fled. He was arrested last night and committed to jail pending the result of the girl's injuries.

Pushing the Colt Divorce Case.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 5.—A notice was served on Colonel Colt by Mrs. Colt's attorneys yesterday afternoon to the effect that they will go to New York on Nov. 8 to take the affidavit of Mr. Gray, proprietor of Gray's Inn, Jackson, N. H. Mr. Gray is going to Florida for the winter on Nov. 9, which accounts for the haste in opening the case.

Embezzler Ward Will be Sent Back.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—At the request of the secretary of state the government of Honduras has promised to extradite A. K. Ward, the alleged Memphis embezzler, who was captured in that country recently, although the United States has no extradition treaty with Honduras.

Trebizond Atrocities Confirmed.

VIENNA, Nov. 5.—Highly respectable European eye witnesses write horrible descriptions of the Trebizond massacres. Feet, hands, ears, eyes and tongues were severed, it is said, before the Armenians were finally dispatched.

Trenton's Diphtheria Epidemic.

TRENTON, Nov. 5.—Twenty one cases of diphtheria have been reported to the local board of health within the past four days. Four have proved fatal. There were forty-eight cases last month, and the authorities are exercised about the epidemic.

POLITICAL PROPHETS.

What They Say Regarding Today's State Elections.

HEAVY VOTE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Belief That it Will be Unprecedented for an "Off Year"—Governor McKinley Thinks Republicans Will Have Sixty Thousand Plurality in Ohio—Maryland's Doubtful Contest.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Reports thus far received from different sections of the state show that an unusually large vote is being polled in this state—for an "off year." While no approximate idea can yet be given of the total vote, it is evident that the number who are today depositing their ballots will largely exceed that of any other year when the principal office voted for is a state treasurer. Both Republican and Democratic workers are straining every nerve to get out the largest possible vote, the Republicans in the most populous centers being especially active, while even in the sparsely settled districts there is an unprecedented outpouring of freemen. The claims of Republican managers that their vote will be near that of last year, however, will not be justified by the count. From the voting thus far it is evident that most of the independent vote is being divided between the two leading parties, the Prohibitionists, Populists and Socialist-Labor candidates being very poorly supported.

Maryland's Hottest Fight.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—The morning of Maryland's most critical political battle finds the issue enshrouded in doubt. The generals upon both sides are claiming victory, but the tones in which they make their boasts and the figures they cite as a basis for their alleged belief do not carry conviction to the mind of an unprejudiced onlooker. The fact is that everybody is at sea, because in the present contest the silent voter is a greater factor than he has ever been in the history of Maryland politics. The fierce and persistent attacks upon Senator Gorman, and the outcry against what his opponents term "Gormanism," has undoubtedly influenced many who have heretofore voted the Democratic ticket, and will induce them to vote against Hurst, who is known as Mr. Gorman's candidate. Upon the other hand the very bitterness of the attack has brought Mr. Gorman's friends closer to him than ever before, and they will get out every vote at their command. Then, too, the color line has been drawn for all it is worth, and every known device has been taken advantage of to lead the voters of Maryland to believe that Republican victory means negro supremacy. With such arguments as these as the sole issues in the campaign it would be idle to predict a result, and all that can be said of it is that it looks like anybody's victory.

McKinley's Prediction for Ohio.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—In Ohio the Republicans have had phenomenal pluralities for two years, and claim now a better organization than ever before. It is conceded that the Republicans can control the legislature without Hamilton county, in which Cincinnati is located, but that the Democrats must have the fourteen members from Hamilton county in order to get a legislative majority. As ex-Governor Foraker, who lives here, is a candidate for Brice's place, great interest is taken in the result in Hamilton county. The Prohibitionists claim the usual vote. General Coxey estimates 40,000 votes for himself as the Populist candidate for governor. It is not believed that either the third or the fourth party will affect the contest between General Bushnell and Governor Campbell. A Massillon dispatch says: Governor McKinley remarked this morning that the state ticket ought to go through with no less than 60,000 plurality. "Last year the Republicans carried the state by 137,087," said he, "but the vote was about 60,000 short. Now, figuring liberally, I don't see how Mr. Campbell can possibly get more than 365,000 votes this year. Last year his party polled only 275,092 votes while the Republicans polled 413,089 votes, so that if we only hold our own we will retain a comfortable margin."

Iowa Expects a Big Vote.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—Chairman McMillan, of the Republican committee, said this morning: "We have made a good fight, and I think we will have a plurality of 80,000 and upwards. We will also elect probably 100 out of the 150 members of the general assembly, making sure of Senator Allison's re-election." Chairman Walsh, of the Democratic committee, said that he was satisfied they could cut down the Republican plurality, and that with due effort on the part of Democrats they would defeat General Drake by a small plurality. The Populists are claiming from 30,000 to 60,000 votes, which is a large gain. The Prohibitionists are also expecting a largely increased vote. The prospects are for a large vote being polled.

Both Sides Claiming Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 5.—This has been one of the hottest campaigns in the history of the state for many years, and Kentucky is today polling the largest vote ever polled. The fight, though there are four tickets in the field, is between the Republicans and Democrats for the state officers, beginning with governor and running down to district railroad commissioner. Hardin's partisans and managers claim that he will come to this city with 15,000 majority, while the friends of Bradley claim that he will win by not less than 10,000. Both sides claim that this city will favor their respective nominee, but the chances are that the backers of Hardin will be disappointed if they are in earnest of their claims.

A Contest for Sheriffs in Kansas.

TOPEKA, Nov. 5.—The greatest interest in today's election in this state, particularly in the eastern half of the state, is centered on the office of sheriff. The Populists are making unusual efforts to elect the sheriff in every county. In this city there is being waged the hardest fight on this office that has been known for many years. Democrats and Populists have combined on O. B. Kopley, a Democrat, to beat David Burge, the present Republican incumbent. The only state officer to be voted for is chief justice of the supreme court, the candidates being David Martin, Rep., and C. H. B. Isley, Ind.

Snow Interferes with Utah's Vote.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 5.—The snow storm which has raged for yesterday interferes with the voting in the country districts, and reports of observation leads to the conclusion that the Republican ticket will be elected by a safe majority, although there are many issues of doubtful effect. Chairman Varian, of the Republican state central committee, says the state ticket will be elected by a safe majority, and that the legislature will be Republican without question, while Chairman Powers, of the Democratic committee, claims that the Democrats will elect the state ticket by from 500 to 600 majority, and that they will elect thirty two of the forty-five members of the legislature.

Nebraska's Silver Fight.

OMAHA, Nov. 5.—The Nebraska campaign has centered around Omaha almost exclusively. All concede that the Republican candidates for chief justice and regents will be elected. The gold and silver Democrats however, exhibit some spirit, and each faction asserts that their state candidates will poll the full strength of their wing, and in that manner the relative number of the voters favoring or opposing the white metal in Nebraska will be known. In this city, owing to recent thefts of city funds, a Citizens' League was formed and a ticket composed of business men of varied political affiliations named. It was indorsed by Democrats and Populists. The Republicans are, it is claimed, controlled by the A. P. A.

A Light Vote in New Jersey.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 5.—The election in this state is claimed by both parties by between 2,000 and 4,000. The voting is light throughout the state except in isolated counties, where local fights on the assembly tickets have added interest to the campaign. The Democratic leaders claim they will control the assembly, but to do this they will have to carry Essex county, which they concede to be Republican on the state ticket. Close observers predict that the majority in the house will not be more than five either way. The senators to be elected will not affect the political complexion of that body.

New York's Blanket Ballot.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—All of the parties in this state expect to poll their full strength in an off year. In this city political interest centers in the contest for county clerk and register. Both the Democrats and the fusionists claim the result in this city. Very elaborate arrangements have been made by the police department to keep order in the city. Two patrolmen have been assigned to each of the 1,392 polling places, and these, with the reserves, it is thought will be able to prevent disturbance. Much interest is taken in the result of the experiment with the blanket ballot, which has never been used in this state before.

Virginia Not a Storm Center.

RICHMOND, Nov. 5.—Virginia is not a storm center this year, as no important issues are involved and no state officers are to be elected. The campaign has been listless, and an unusually light vote is being polled. As the legislature to be chosen today does not select a United States senator the legislative contest has not been accentuated. The main issue is on the revision of the election laws, Republicans and Populists urging that the present Walton election law has the effect of giving the dominant party control of the entire election machinery of the state.

Poor Show for Populists in Mississippi.

JACKSON, Nov. 5.—The whole Democratic state ticket, it is expected, will be elected in this state, as it is not believed that the Populists will carry half a dozen counties in the state. It is doubtful if Captain Frank Burkitt, the Populist nominee for governor, carries his own county of Chickasaw. The legislature to be chosen will elect a successor in the national senate to J. Z. George, who is a candidate for re-election.

Represented a Millionaire's Wife.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Sophia C. Smith, who was arrested for obtaining goods by representing herself to be Mrs. C. P. Huntington, was arraigned in the Jefferson Market court on two charges yesterday, and held for examination in $1,500 on each charge. Two merchants appeared against her. Mrs. Smith denied the charges, and talked in an incoherent way.

Children Trampled by a Runaway Horse.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Three little children who were playing on the sidewalk in this city yesterday afternoon were knocked down by a runaway team. Emma Janke, 3 years old, was killed outright by being trampled under the horse's hoods, and 7-year-old Alfred Lemke was badly injured. The third child was not seriously hurt.

Now Admits His Guilt.

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 5.—Frank Wilson, who has confessed his participation in the murder of Henry Bonnecke in this city last April, was brought from Scranton yesterday and lodged in the Hollidaysburg jail. He has revealed the names of two confederates, who have not yet been located.

A British Envoy Murdered.

SIMLA, India, Nov. 5.—A messenger belonging to the British agency ran amuck at Cabul, the capital of Afghanistan, and killed Lieutenant Colonel Mahomad Akran Khan, the British envoy, and severely wounded the envoy's son.

Armenians Now the Aggressors.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Dispatches received here from Constantinople report that the Armenians have pillaged the Turks' houses at Zeitoun, and have killed Turkish women and children there.

EUGENE FIELD'S DEATH.

Chicago's Popular Poet a Victim of Heart Disease.

THE END CAME VERY SUDDENLY.

Mr. Field Had Been Slightly Indisposed for Several Days—Was to Have Appeared Last Night in Kansas City—Found Dead in Bed by His Son.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Eugene Field, the poet, died in his bed of heart failure about 5 o'clock yesterday morning. He retired at night in usual health and apparently slept soundly till daybreak, when his son, who occupied the room with him, heard him groan, and putting out his hand found that death had already taken place. Mr. Field leaves a widow and five children. Mr. Field has been indisposed for several days, but no serious results were even thought of by his family and immediate friends. He was to have given a reading in Kansas City last night, and the demand for seats had been remarkable.

The funeral services will take place at the Fourth Presbyterian church, Rush and Superior streets, tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, and appropriate addresses will be made by the Rev. Dr. W. M. Stricker and Luther Laflin Mills. The interment will be at Graceland cemetery, and will be private.

Eugene Field was born at St. Louis in 1841 of a family of sterling New England stock, his father being Roswell M. Field, a distinguished St. Louis lawyer. At 17 years of age he entered Williams college, and subsequently went to Knox college, at Galesburg, Ills. He studied there two years, and afterwards continued for some time at the University of Missouri.

In 1871 Mr. Field went to Europe, where he traveled for six months. He became a newspaper reporter in 1873, being employed on the St. Louis Evening Journal, of which he soon was made city editor. He also worked on a newspaper in St. Joseph for several months, and later became managing editor of the Kansas City Times. About fourteen years ago he went to Denver as a member of the editorial staff of The Tribune, of that city. There within a short time his writings gave him a wide reputation. In 1883 the Chicago Daily News secured his services, and ever since then he had been on the staff of that newspaper.

Mr. Field had lately added to his fame by a very pleasant column of chat in the Chicago News and Record, under the head of "Sharps and Flats." His most important work published at Chicago is "Culture's Garland: Memoranda of the Gradual Rise of Literature," with an introduction by his friend, Julian Hawthorne. A poem of his that attracted great attention here and in Europe was called "Looking for Home."

In one form of verse Mr. Field was a master. His children's poetry has never been surpassed, even by Robert Lewis Stevenson in his "Child's Garden of Verses." "Wynken, Blynken and Nod" is as charming a lullaby as has ever been written.

Lynched for Stealing.

WYNNE, Ark., Nov. 5.—About ten days ago Albert England, a white man who claims Cross county as his home, broke into a store at Vilonia, Ark., and stole $25 worth of goods. He was arrested and brought to Wynne, and afterwards turned over to Marshal Orenda, who took him to Vilonia and turned him over to the authorities there. He was bound over to the circuit court and put under guard. At 2 o'clock Sunday morning a mob took him from the officers and shot him to death. England had been in several shady transactions in this part of the country.

Abbe Roussel the Disturber.

BOURGES, France, Nov. 5.—In the trial of the Marquise de Nayve, charged with the murder of her stepson, a former governess to the prisoner's daughter, testified that all the mischief in the family was due to the sinister influence of the Abbe Roussel, who wanted to break up the house hold and thus get the wife's fortune.

Chicago to San Francisco in Three Days.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The cut made in the running time from Chicago to Los Angeles by the Santa Fe has spurred the Northwestern. It has nearly completed arrangements whereby the time from Chicago to San Francisco will be cut to three days.

TO SCARE BURGLARS.

A FEW DEVICES SOMEWHAT OUT OF THE COMMON RUN.

They May Happen to Frighten People Who Are Not Burglars, but There Is No Doubt That Most of Them Are Calculated to Scare Every Time.

A little party of women, brought together last week by a family reunion over in Brooklyn, had under debate a common notion recently printed in The Sun respecting domestic devices to serve as burglar alarms.

"We believe in tin," said one. "John cut a little groove like half of an auger hole across the tops of the front and back doors, a few inches back from the outer edge, and before we go to bed we poke into each one a stick supporting some old tin ware on the extreme end. A leaky watering pot, with some old tin cups inside, hangs on one, and on the other an old dishpan, with a couple of baking tins tied to it. So long as the door stays shut nothing happens, but if it is pushed open the least mite of a crack down comes the tinware with a clatter fit to wake up everybody in the ward."

"That's all well enough for your doors, but how about the windows? A thief can open one of these new fangled catches by poking a table knife up between the sashes, as easy as you'd say scat."

"But that wouldn't open our windows. John has bored holes slanting in through the window casing into the sashes and put long iron pins in them. It is just as if every window was nailed fast, and a burglar, to get in, would have to cut away the whole sash."

"Did any of you ever try newspapers?" asked another. "No? Well, let me assure you, from my own experience, there is nothing better. Lay one or two dry newspaper sheets in the lower hall and pin a couple on the stairs. It is impossible to step on them without making a noise that, in the stillness of night, would surprise you if you never tried it before. And you can't pick them up or fold them or slide them out of the way or step over them without more noise. As for the ones on the stairs, they are simply the thief's despair. My husband laughed at me when I first put them down, but within a week, as it happened, their efficacy was proved. I was awakened one night by the rustling of paper in the hall below and awoke my husband. We lay quiet and listened. Presently there was another rustle. Then a long silence. Then more rustling, and as the sound of it died away we could hear somebody swearing in a whisper. It was so funny that my husband burst into a roar of laughter, and the fellow down stairs jerked the front door open and fled."

"I don't think scaring a burglar away is enough punishment for him," commented an elderly woman. "He ought to be hurt somehow. Mr B thinks so, too, and his 'warm welcome for the uninvited' is something that, as he says, 'just about fills the bill.' The bells on our front door and the arc light before it free us of all apprehensions of attack from that direction, but twice our house was entered by petty thieves through the back door, which faces a dark garden and is in the shadow of a vine covered porch. The second time inspired Mr. B. with an idea. At one side of the door, about the height of a man's face, he fastened to the wall a springy bamboo cane, with a tin cup wired to its free end. During the day it can be turned up on the wall out of the way, but at night, when he sets it for business, it is sprung out about 1½ feet and held there by a short stick and a figure 4 trigger so set that opening the door will trip it. The tin cup, I omitted to mention, holds a good ounce of cayenne pepper.

"For a month after Mr. B. rigged that contrivance up nothing happened, and he was getting low-spirited over the neglect of the burglars to take note of his new invention. Then, one night, the sharp 'spang' of the cane against the wall rang sharply all through the house and woke us up. That was followed immediately by language on the back porch fit to make your blood run cold. We got to the window in time to see two men in the garden, one leading the other, who was howling and swearing terribly. We fancied that some of the pepper had got into his eyes. Before Mr. B. could get his pistol they had disappeared in the shrubbery, and we have not been troubled since."

"That trigger, set to go off when the door was opened," remarked another woman, "reminds me of a horrid thing my husband brought home with him from a trip out west last year. It was like a pistol barrel, with a long screw on one side for fixing it to the door frame and a long spring on the other to project over the edge of the door. A little touch would make the spring fall hard on a cap and fire the thing off. The first night after Jack got home, when I was setting a chair upside down against the door, as I always did, he stopped me and put on his new contraption. When I got up first in the morning, as usual, I had forgotten all about that thing, which was down as low as my knees, and did not notice it when I went to go out. Then it suddenly seemed to me as if the world had exploded. The thing had worked all right, and in addition to making a noise louder than the sunset gun at the fort, had riddled the vestibule wall with buckshot. Jack said it would have filled a burglar's legs with lead,' and I believed him, but I never would allow him to put it on the door again. One such scare is enough for a lifetime."—New York Sun.

His English Fit.

"What makes the rhinoceros so sulky today?" asked the gun.

"Some one told him his clothes did not fit him," explained the springbok.

"Dear me! And he is very angry at that? He is so thin skinned."—Indianapolis Journal.

FAMOUS POLITICAL PHRASE.

Used In Different Forms by Lincoln, Theodore Parker and Webster.

In a letter headed "Not Lincoln's Own Words," a correspondent points out that the words "government of the people, by the people, for the people," in the famous Gettysburg address were not original with Lincoln. He attempts to further show that they were original with Henry Wilson, and were quoted by Lincoln from a letter written in 1860 by Wilson to certain persons in Boston.

In a speech delivered at the New England antislavery convention, Boston, May 29, 1850, by Theodore Parker, may be found the expression "a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people," the exact language, with the exception of one word, of that ascribed to Wilson and employed by Lincoln. But still further back had the same idea been expressed in substantially the same way by Daniel Webster in one of his most splendid oratorical efforts, whose every phrase was familiar to all patriotic Americans long before Parker uttered his speech or Wilson wrote his letter. In his second speech on Foot's resolution, Jan. 26, 1830, Webster used these words. "The people's government, made for the people, made by the people and answerable to the people."

The phrase discussed belongs no more to Wilson than to Lincoln. The words can no more be said to have been "quoted" by Lincoln from Wilson than from Parker or Webster. Lincoln was familiar with the writings and speeches of Parker. He had probably never seen this particular letter of Wilson's. That his language should be exactly the same as that of the latter was a coincidence, but probably nothing more. The phrase was merely the expression, in the simplest, most direct language, of the glorious yet popular and familiar idea of the constitution and object of our form of government. The expression cannot be ascribed to any one man. Lincoln does not give the statement as a positive declaration—as a new coined phrase intended to add to his laurels as a public speaker, but uses the words as descriptive of our government in uttering the resolve that it "shall not perish from the earth."

That some words of the speech had been said before does not detract from the beauty or grandeur of Lincoln's address as a whole. His speech, which has been declared to be the greatest in the records of oratory of our own or any other country, was so not because it was the labored and polished effort of a practiced orator, but because of the greatness of the man, as a man, who uttered it.—Washington Star.

SELLING A MINE.

A Western Man's Great Luck In Disposing of His Property.

"It is the easiest thing on earth to sell a mine in London for almost any price, provided you have anything to show an expert," said Major Frank McLaughlin. "There is also a right way and a wrong way to go about it. Some time ago I went to London to negotiate the sale of some mining property. Of course, the first thing I had to do was to let capital know what I was there for. Then, when inquiries commenced, I simply said: 'Gentlemen, I have mining property to sell. If you mean business and want to buy, send your expert out to examine the property and make a report on it. You will know then what you are buying.'

"A company was organized. The expert examined the property and reported favorably, and a meeting was held to discuss terms.

"'Now, major,' said the spokesman, 'we have found that the property may be worth something. What is your price?'

"'Two hundred and fifty thousand,' said I.

"'That is more than we expected to pay. We expected to pay about 200,000. There is not much difference between 200,000 and 250,000. If you will drop the 50,000 we will take it.'

"I expected to get about $100,000 for the property, so with a show of reluctancy I agreed to accept their offer. When the papers were made out, I was surprised to learn that they had been talking about pounds and I about dollars, but I was very careful not to let my surprise leak, and that is the way I got $1,000,000 for the mine. Great people to do business with."—San Francisco Post.

MISS CONSUELO VANDERBILT.

The Prospective Duchess Has Been Carefully Reared and Is Simple In Her Tastes.

Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is soon to wed the young Duke of Marlborough, is a very accomplished young woman and has received the best education that thoughtful care and unlimited means can provide. She has made good use of her opportunities and is well fitted in every way to assume the high social position in England the duke's rank will give her. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, who agreed to disagree in the divorce courts not long ago, and, strange to relate, the future duchess is the goddaughter of a duchess—the Duchess of Manchester—who was formerly Miss Consuela Yznaga.

At the age of 6 little Miss Vanderbilt, heir to about $30,000,000, was placed in the care of a very capable governess, who taught her to read and write, and who has since been her principal teacher. French and German tutors made her conversant with these languages, and a French maid and a German maid constantly at hand gave her the necessary practice in speaking. She has no particular talent for music or art, but plays well, sketches with some skill and is a graceful dancer. She has been hedged about by so many precautions that she has not had the experience of most American girls of her age, and the Duke of Marlborough is the only young man who has been permitted to pay her any attention. She has never been permitted to walk or drive alone with any young man except the duke, and she is rather inclined to be shy and retiring in her manner.

As she is only 17 she will be the most youthful duchess in all England, and in the matter of social precedence she will be far ahead of all American women on the other side. She has black hair and brown eyes, and is about 5 feet 6 inches tall. She has an olive complexion and rosy cheeks, and a No. 3 AA shoe is said to be an excellent fit for her dainty foot. She cherishes no special fad, plays tennis with skill and rides a bicycle, and her favorite color is pink. She can talk intelligently on the literature of the past and present, and keeps well informed on the topics of the day. Her gowns are always the best that money can buy, but they are very simple and in good taste. She never wears jewelry at entertainments, and her only ornament at the great ball at Marble House, Newport, recently was a handful of pink carnations fastened in her black hair.

A Woman In Africa.

The niece of the late Canon Kingsley is an adventurous young scientist. She is a student of botany and zoology, and she has penetrated into regions where Europeans have never before ventured in order to prosecute the studies at first hand. In 1893 Miss Kingsley went out to St. Paul de Loanda for the purpose of studying botany and zoology. After collecting many specimens, she visited Cabenda. Miss Kingsley had to travel through dense bush and swamps, but with such success that she decided to make a second visit to the coast.

She started in December last year in Captain Murray's steamer Batanga, and is still in Africa. Miss Kingsley's latest travels have been in the elephant and gorilla countries.

An Important Question.

If your friends or neighbors are suffering from coughs, colds, sore throat, or any throat or lung disease including consumption, ask them if they have ever used Otto's Cure. Chambers, 57 North street, near Post Office will give you a sample bottle free. No matter what other medicines have failed to do, try Otto's Cure.

Nothing so distressing as hacking cough. None so foolish as to suffer from it. Nothing so dangerous if allowed to continue. One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief W. D. Olney.

AN ENGLISH FINANCIER.

Career of George Sandeman, Governor of the Bank of England.

More to be envied than the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo is Albert George Sandeman, governor of the Bank of England, the most important financial institution in the world. Sandeman is 62 years of age, is a native of London, and has been engaged in active business for 46 years. He is the eldest son of George Clas Sandeman, a merchant who had valuable interests in England, Portugal and Australia, and whom he succeeded as the head of the firm of George C. Sandeman, Sons & Co. At the age of 16 he was already a business man of ability, and at 20 he was sent to Portugal to manage a branch house his father had established there. He was successful from the start, and has since become very wealthy and influential. Sandeman is extremely versatile in his pursuits, and has not confined his efforts to any one business. For many years he was chairman of the London Dock company, he has directed a successful assurance corporation, and has been interested in numerous other enterprises.

ALBERT G. SANDEMAN.

His connection with the Bank of England began in 1866, when he was elected a director of the institution. He is the hundredth governor of the bank and ranks as one of England's most eminent living financiers. His wife is the eldest daughter of the late Vicomte da Torre de Moncorvo, for many years Portuguese minister to the court of St. James.

BACKED BY THE BANKERS.

A New Woman Who Is a Nominee For County Treasurer.

There is a general impression that the powerful politician usually gets the plum, but in the Centennial State this does not always happen. Miss Florence McCune is not a member of any political club in Colorado, and she has never taken any part in politics, but for all that the Republican party of Arapahoe county, in which Denver is situated, recently nominated her for the very responsible position of county treasurer. Miss McCune's strength lay in the fact that for 14 years she has served faithfully and ably as assistant county treasurer and has won the respect and esteem of the moneyed men of Denver.

MISS FLORENCE M'CUNE.

Her record proved very valuable to her, for when the convention met David H. Moffat, president of the First National bank of Denver and the richest man in the state, intimated that unless Miss McCune were nominated there would be such a stringency in financial circles that the person who defeated her for the nomination would find difficulty in securing acceptable bondsmen. When this fiat went forth, Miss McCune was nominated. She is a native of Hollyville, Ia., and is strong minded enough to admit that she is 32 years of age.

When Miss Florence was 4 years old, she became a resident of Colorado, and when her father died in 1881 the pioneers induced the county treasurer to make Florence his assistant.

STOLEN SILVER RECOVERED.

Three Arrests in Connection with a Sensational London Robbery.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The police have seized fifteen ingots of silver in connection with the great silver robbery which occurred on Sept. 25, when thirty-one ingots of silver, valued at $24,500, the property of the Midland Railway company, were stolen from a van in which they were being conveyed from the company's station through the streets of London. In connection with the seizure of the ingots the police have also arrested George Barrett and Edward Gray, who were in charge of the van at the time the ingots were taken from it.

This robbery has been attended with many sensational developments since it was perpetrated in broad daylight on Sept. 25. The drivers at the time left the wagon with the valuable load in the street for twenty-five minutes while they went to breakfast. When they returned the wagon had disappeared.

On Oct. 16 the sensation was revived by the arrest of Alexander Sarti, manager of one of the branch establishments of the celebrated jewelers, Elkington & Co., charged with the crime. His employers joined with the Midland Railway company in the prosecution. Two of the ingots were found in an acid bath in their establishment under Sarti's charge, but they had not been there long enough for the distinguishing stamp to become obliterated. Sarti had been a trusted employe of Elkington & Co. for thirty years.

A Shooting Mystery Explained.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 5.—E. H. Garvis, a prominent citizen of Luzerne borough, yesterday explained to a justice of the peace the mystery surrounding the death on Saturday of John Wyckoff in Wilkesbarre hospital. Mr. Garvis said that while bicycling to his home late on Tuesday night he was accosted by Wyckoff on a bridge in a lonely part of the road. He paid no attention to his assailant's command to halt, whereupon Wyckoff fired at him, the bullet passing through his hat. Garvis dismounted and returned fire, and the man shrieked and fell from the bridge into the creek below. Garvis then rode home. The wounded man crawled out of the creek and made away to a strip of woods, where he was found Saturday morning, suffering from a bullet wound and a fractured skull.

Religious Riot in Massachusetts.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Nov. 5.—Last night while a parade held under the auspices of the American Protective association was being formed stones and heavy missiles were thrown and several persons were injured. The most seriously hurt were Alphonse Davis and Fred W. Crispin, Jr., both of whom were struck on the head. The parade preceded a lecture on "Immigration," delivered in the city hall by Rev. Scott F. Hershey, D. D., pastor of the Columbus Avenue Presbyterian church of Boston. Six hundred members and sympathizers of the American Protective association were in line, and thousands of people crowded the streets. A large detail of police was on duty, as trouble was anticipated, but they were unable to prevent the disturbance.

Suicide in Niagara Rapids.

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 5.—At 5:30 last evening James Haffa, of Philadelphia, committed suicide by jumping from the Goat Island bridge into the rapids. The body caught on a rock a short distance above the falls, but no effort was made to recover it. Haffa had been hanging about the city for several days, and appeared to be somewhat unsound mentally. He claimed to have been a sea captain, and to have served in the navy during the civil war.

Barnes Charged with Theft.

TRENTON, Nov. 5.—John A. Barnes, who recently brought suit against his former employer, ex-Mayor Frank A. Magowan, assessing damages for alienating the affections of Mrs. Barnes, has been indicted by the grand jury on the charge of grand larceny, in abstracting from Mr. Magowan's desk $7,000 in stocks. The charge is preferred by Mr. Magowan. Barnes declares that the stocks were given to him by Magowan.

Hinshaw Denied a New Trial.

DANVILLE, Ind., Nov. 5.—Rev. William S. Hinshaw, convicted of the murder of his wife Laura, recently, was yesterday denied a new trial by Judge Hadley. He will be sentenced later in the week. The case will be appealed to the supreme court. Hinshaw said he would make a speech from the court house steps on the day sentence is pronounced. It will probably cause a sensation.

More Trouble for Herr Liebknecht.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Vorwaerts, the socialistic organ, says that Herr Liebknecht is being prosecuted for the speech he made at opening the annual socialistic congress at Breslau. Herr Liebknecht said on that occasion: "The highest authority in the land throws down the gauntlet and insults us. Let us take up the challenge. No matter who he be who casts this mud at us, he is incapable of touching us, for we are above his insults." This was in reference to an anti-socialist speech made by Kaiser William. Herr Liebknecht concluded his speech by saying: "The German empire would first collapse, but socialism will triumph. A violation of universal suffrage would be equivalent to the breach warrant of the imperial government."

Stern Granted a Month's Stay

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Mr. Louis Stern, of New York, who was sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment and to pay a fine of 600 marks for insulting Baron von Thungen, deputy commissioner of the Spa at Kissengen, Bavaria, and who was released in $4,000 marks bail, has been granted a stay of execution for a month, it being understood that at the expiration of that time he intends to present himself to the authorities in order to undergo his term of imprisonment.

GEORGE H. THOMPSON, C. MACARDELL, } EDITORS
J. F. ROBINSON, A. E. NICKINSON, } CITY EDITORS
C. MACARDELL, JR., BUSINESS MANAGER

TUESDAY, NOV. 5, 1895.

The last figures of the Democratic campaign managers are 18,000 plurality for the State ticket and not less than twenty-six of the fifty Senators. The Republican figures are 27,000 plurality and thirty-four Senators. We'll know which is right, to morrow.

The Committee of Fifty gave the Republican Campaign Committee but $7,000, yesterday, and a more disgusted lot of "statesmen for revenue" never left a campaign headquarters. Some of the district leaders went away declaring that they would order their workers to scratch the names of all Strong Republicans and State Democracy on the fusion ticket. The count of the ballots may give a little idea how important a factor money is in helping to carry a New York city election.

Had it not been that drought made the hay crop so short a one, and for its destructive effect upon pastures, with consequent shrinkage of the milk flow until cows again become fresh milkers, the farmers of Orange county would have enjoyed through the most unusual prevailing low prices for western feed stuffs, some compensation for the unremunerative prices at which they have to dispose of the product of their dairies. But, even as it is, how much better they are off than they would have been were cattle feeds higher, is easily figured out.

A dollar goes a great ways, nowadays, in the purchase of many things. For instance, take flour, meal, potatoes, sugar, molasses, butter, cheese, lard, salted and smoked flesh of the hog, onions, raisins and other dried fruits, canned goods, soap, beans, rice, the yard of cotton or woolen cloths, the suit of clothes and foot and headwear, all articles of prime necessity and all to be had at prices which favor buyers all the way from twenty-five to fifty per cent. in comparison with their cost, say, five years ago. Summed up, one can live as well, dress as well, at the present time on an expenditure of ten dollars a week as would have been possible five years ago at a cost of fifteen dollars. On the other hand, it is to be admitted that the dollar does not come as easy, nowadays, as it did of yore,—still, the wage earner's income has, upon the whole, suffered but little if any shrinkage in the half decade. It is the tiller of the soil upon whom the hardship of this great shrinkage in the cost of so many things appears to have fallen most heavily. His wheat, his oats, his corn and his pork are passing into the stomach of the consumer with small show of profit to himself But there is even some measure of compensation for the farmer out of all this,—getting less for what he has to sell, he buys at correspondingly less cost what others have to sell, and which he needs.

TORE THE BIBLE IN PIECES.

An East Main Street Youth Who Took Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde Very Seriously

An East Main street youth is reported to have been seriously affected while witnessing the play of Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, at the Casino, Saturday evening. He retired at a late hour, but soon arose in a somnambulistic state, and, imitating the villain, proceeded to tear in pieces the large family bible, scattering the fragments about the room. It was with difficulty that the boy's father, awakened by the racket, succeeded in getting his son back to bed.

Died in the Woods.

The body of an unknown man, about sixty years of age, was found Sunday, in the woods near North Norwich. An empty morphine bottle found near the body suggested that death was due to an overdose of that poison. The body was viewed by hundreds of people, Sunday, but was not identified.

"The First Settler's Story"

Has been told again and again, by the pioneers of this and other towns, but never as Will Carleton tells it. It is thrilling to read; it is splendid when read by a good elocutionist; it is soul-stirring when recited as only its author can recite it.

The Carleton Column

Is always good reading. Read it while it lasts. Its culmination will occur on Friday evening, the 8th, at the Casino.

The body must be well nourished now, to prevent sickness. If your appetite is poor take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A CROWDED HOUSE.

"Wang" Draws the Largest House of the Season—A Good Performance.

One of the largest audiences of the season was present at the Casino, last night, the attraction being the great metropolitan comic opera success, "Wang."

The company was excellent, the chorus and solo singing equalling those of any comic opera company ever heard in this city.

Mr. Albert Hart, as "Wang," the character created by Mr. DeWolf Hopper, made a most favorable impression upon the audience. Many of them had seen Mr. Hopper in the role and declare that Mr. Hart is his equal, if not many respects his superio in the character.

Miss Georgia Redfern Caine, as Mataya, the Crown Prince, gave a very pleasing performance. Taken as a whole the cast was an excellent one.

WILL CARLETON

Will Come.

On the evening of Nov. 8th, give one of his famous entertainments in the Casino, and then go on, one by one, to the thousand other cities that are awaiting him. Large audiences for him are already enrolled for almost every night between now and Christmas. January, February, March and April engagements are already made. You see this is the one chance for the people of Middletown and vicinity to see and hear him.

He was in Providence, R. I., on the 1st of October; a few days after, a petition was sent him, signed by the Mayor and many other prominent citizens, for him to come again immediately. Providence is a very large city and although his audience room was crowded from platform to storm doors, not a tenth of the people could hear him that wished to. He wanted to go back immediately, but it will be a long time before he can get the evening in which to do so.

He was in Poughkeepsie, October 11th, and this time he was able to comply with the public demand and appear there once more, on the evening of Oct. 25th. On both occasions he had packed houses "Never was old Poughkeepsie stirred up so before," was the verdict of thousands of citizens.

But the demands upon him are so heavy that he has been obliged to make a new rule. "Only once in a place," and you can be present that once, if you buy your seat soon.

OBITUARY.

Anna Kelly.

From Our Goshen Correspondent.

Anna, wife of Daniel Kelly, died at her home at Greenwood Lake, Nov. 1st. The deceased had been ill for the past three months, suffering from a complication of diseases, and the cause of her death is attributed to fatty degeneration of the heart.

She was born at Greenwood Lake, sixty-six years ago, at which place the greater portion of her life has been spent. She is survived by her husband, Mr. Daniel Kelly, six sons, Edward, Daniel, Jr., John, Hugh, Benjamin, of New York; William, of Greenwood Lake, and four daughters, Mrs. Thomas Finan, of Goshen; Mrs. T. K. Morgan, of New York, Mrs. Mulholland, of Rondout, and Miss Margaret, who resides at home.

The funeral services were held at Monroe at 9.30 o'clock, Monday morning. Interment at Cavalry Cemetery, Long Island.

Mrs. Sarah Elston.

From Our Johnson Correspondent.

Mrs. Sarah Elston, who was perhaps the oldest resident of the town of Greenville, passed quietly away on Sunday, Oct. 27th, at the remarkable age of ninety-six years, eleven months and five days. Her death was directly due to old age. Until about a year ago, she had enjoyed remarkably good health, considering her years, and she retained all her mental faculties up to the hour of her death.

Mrs. Elston's maiden name was Sarah Clark and she was born Nov. 22nd, 1798. In 1817 she was married to William Elston, who died in March, 1854. The fruits of this marriage were five sons and one daughter, as follows: Erastus, James, Levi and Hiram, of Greenville; Charles, of Pine Island, and Elizabeth, wife of B. F. Brown, also of Pine Island.

Mrs. Elston's entire life was spent in the town of Greenville, where she was born and died. During the latter years of her life she made her home with her son Hiram, at whose house she died.

She became a member of the Mt. Salem Methodist Church about sixty years ago. Subsequently she changed to the Greenville Baptist Church and later to the Mt. Salem Baptist Church, of which she was a devoted member during the remainder of her life.

Mrs. Elston was a most unselfish woman and took a keen interest in the welfare of those around her, and although the hand of age had taken away her youthful activity, still there was a kind feeling and a word of encouragement for all.

The funeral services, which were held at the Mt. Salem Baptist Church, on Wednesday, were very largely attended. Interment at Mt. Salem.

A SURPRISE THAT WAS A SURPRISE

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. DeWitt Return from the Theatre to Find Their Home in Possession of Friends.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward DeWitt gave them a genuine surprise, last night, at their home on Grand avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. T. K. DeWitt and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Phillips formed a theatre party and attended the performance of "Wang" at the Casino. All were in the secret except Mr. and Mrs. Ed. DeWitt. They returned home about 11 o'clock and when they came in sight of Mr. DeWitt's house that gentleman saw a blaze of light from every window and jumped to the conclusion at once that the house was on fire, and thought only of his children who had been left in charge of a girl.

He exclaimed, "My God, the house is on fire and my children are in it!" and ran as fast as his feet could carry him and was closely followed by his wife, who was as badly frightened as himself. When he reached the door and threw it open his ears were greeted with the sound of music and his eyes beheld about seventy five of his friends dancing and otherwise enjoying themselves.

Mr. DeWitt's great relief of mind, when he realized the situation, caused him to collapse, but when he could regain his speech he gave his friends as hearty a welcome as possible, and he and his wife at once joined in the festivities which were kept up until 4 o'clock, this morning.

The visitors had brought with them an orchestra and an abundance of edibles and during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt took absolute possession of the premises.

Barring the little scare the event was full of enjoyment to all who participated and will be long remembered.

A Father's Awful Find.

About 6 o'clock, Sunday morning, when Daniel Thompson, of Matteawan, opened his rear door to go into the yard the first object that met his gaze was the dead body of his son, John, lying near the stoop. A physician gave an opinion that the young man had been seized with apoplexy just as he was about to step upon the stoop and had fallen with his head on a large rock.

It's just as easy to try One Minute Cough Cure as anything else. It's easier to cure a severe cough or cold with it. Let your next purchase for a cough be One Minute Cough Cure. Better medicine; better results; better try it. W. D. Olney

THE ELECTION IN THIS CITY.

Very Quiet at All the Polls—But Little Chance for the Workers—A Question as to the Return of Votes for Supreme Court Judges—The Vote at 3 O'clock

The blanket ballot, used for the first time in this city, to day, has given Middletown the quietest election it has had in years.

The poll worker's occupation seemed almost gone. A few ward statesmen have loitered about the 100 foot deadlines, but it was only from force of habit,—they seemed to think that the election could not go on without them. They lingered, however, "superfluous on the scene," and none of their old-time activity was discernible. Voters, who, in the olden days would have been stopped and reasoned with and paid were allowed to pass in the morning without even a word of greeting. This afternoon, there have been signs that Republican workers were handing out the "long green."

Voters took kindly to the new system of voting, and very few of them had any trouble with their ballots. At all events, very few asked for a second ballot because they had spoiled the first one. It is possible, however, that more than a few voters who thought they knew it all and marked their ballots in accordance with their own ideas, instead of as the law directs, have succeeded in disfranchising themselves.

In one of the Fourth Ward districts, for instance, a Republican was boasting that he had "blacked Hirschberg's name till there was no chance of reading it." The result, of course, is that the ballot will have to be thrown out, and that in "blacking" Hirschberg he "blacked" all the candidates for whom he wanted to vote.

In nearly every district a question has arisen as to returning the vote for Justices of the Supreme Court The election law says that when two or more candidates for the same office are "grouped" a person wishing to split his ticket must place a mark opposite the names of the candidates for whom he wishes to vote. On the ballots voted to-day the names of candidates for Supreme Court Judges are not grouped, the line for "Justice of the Supreme Court" appearing three times on each party ticket with the name of a single candidate under it. It is assumed that Col. Dickey will receive a number of Democratic votes, and it is also assumed that on many of these ballots the X will be omitted from the squares opposite the names of Democratic candidates.

The question at issue is are candidates "grouped" when each one's name is printed under the title of the office, in a separate section of the ballot? If so Col. Dickey will be the only candidate voted for on quite a number of ballots. If they are not "grouped" an X opposite Col. Dickey's name acts as a "scratch" only on the name of the Democratic candidate printed opposite, which is that of Martin J. Keogh.

It is probable that inspectors instead of trying to decide this question will make their returns in such a way that higher and more competent authorities may pass upon the matter, which in the event of a close vote in the district, may be a most important one

In most of the districts more than half the vote was polled by noon.

At 3 o'clock the vote in the several districts was as follows:

	Registration.	Vote.
FIRST WARD.
First District	191	141
Second "	340	263

EXCELSIORS' NEW TRUCK.

Arrived Last Night and Placed in the Truck House, This Morning—Up-to-Date and Very Handsome—Its Equipment.

Excelsiors' long looked for new truck arrived in town, last night, via the Erie, and during the morning was exposed to the view of an admiring public on a flat car in the Erie yard. Shortly before noon, Mayor Stansbury signed the necessary receipt releasing the railroad company, and under the direction of Chief Thorpe and his assistants, Messrs. Higham and Smith and the officers of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, the apparatus was safely unloaded and stored in the company's house on King street.

To all appearances the truck is up to the standard required by the specifications and is just what is required in progressive Middletown.

The appartus consists of 212 feet of ladder divided as follows: Three extension, two wall, two roof and one scaling ladder; two fire extinguishers, axes, crowbars, buckets, lanterns, tin roof cutter, electric wire cutters, door openers, hose hoisting hook, shovels, pitchforks, ropes, etc.

The length of the truck from tip of pole to tip of last ladder is 44 feet, and the height from the ground to top ladder, 6 feet. The truck and apparatus complete weigh about 3,500 pounds.

The truck is provided with two tongues, one for hand use and the other for horses. In place of the old style steering "tiller" an up to-date steering appartus is situated over the rear axle and the tillerman will have a seat, instead of trailing on behind as he was required to do on the old truck.

The truck is handsomely painted a beautiful shade of red, brightened by gilt and colored striping. The appearance of the truck is also greatly improved by much nickel-plating.

That Joyful Feeling

With the exhilarating sense of renewed health and strength and internal cleanliness which follows the use of Syrup Figs, is unknown to the few who have not progressed beyond the old time medicine and the cheap substitute sometimes offered, but never accepted by the well informed.

While thorough in action, Ayer's Pill's strengthen rather than stimulate the excretory organs. Leading physicians recommend them because they are free from calomel or other injurious drugs, being composed entirely of the best vegetable aperients.

The Erie's New Trainmaster.

We will sell this week black coney capes for $6.89.

Black astrachan capes for $13.50.

To convince you that we want your cloak business and need the money, we put on sale a full line of rough jackets, in the latest cut, worth $20, for $12.50 each. This ought to be a clincher.

To convince you that we want your dress goods business, we will sell this week 40 pieces of all wool French Henrietta at 21c

This will be a winner for this week, if values and qualities are considered.

This week we want to make the week of weeks.

BASEBALL.

Upon the level field to hold
A gathering of pleasure's court
To emulate the Greeks of old
In friendly rivalry and sport.

Swift from the pitcher's hands the ball
Flies till it meets the bat, and then
Upward it scales the sky's blue wall,
Trembles and drops to earth again.

Then lifts a long and lusty shout
That seems to shake the very sun,
Who knows the score? Is it an "out,"
Or did the player make a "run?"

So every afternoon their play
Makes tougher muscles, redder cheeks,
And keeps our sturdy boys to-day
The rivals of the ancient Greeks.
—F. D. Sherman in Youth's Companion.

SERGEANT STONE.

Sergeant Stone was a mystery to the rest of the garrison. He had been at the fort for nearly a year, having been sent from one of the recruiting stations in the north, and further than that no one knew. That he was a gentleman by birth and breeding was evident. He was rather tall, and had a fine head set well upon a pair of square, manly shoulders. From under an overhanging brow his eyes, big black ones, shone, sometimes with a baleful light that betrayed an devil incarnate in his soul. Again they were dreamy, and had a faraway look in them, but always an expression of more suffering. His mouth was finely chiseled, and his teeth were small and even. But his chin denoted weakness. He might have been anywhere between 25 and 30 years of age.

He took his place in the ranks, and by strict attention to duty was promoted to corporal. The one time the troop was in the field since he was with them he fought with such a savage delight that his comrades wondered if he had a private grudge against the Apaches. Two of the redskins were in the act of scalping Private Finnerty when a well directed bullet from Stone's carbine sent one of them to the happy hunting grounds, and a chance shot from his revolver disabled the other. For this he was made sergeant. In response to Finnerty's profuse expressions of gratitude he merely growled:

"I wish that it had been me instead of you, and no one had interfered."

Seldom did he enter into conversation with the other soldiers. He was quiet and very morose. He had been moping all summer. He performed his duties in a mechanical sort of way, and when they were finished he sought solitude again. The advances of his comrades were met with a chilly demeanor that very effectually checked them, and Sergeant Stone became very unpopular and was left severely alone.

"I'll tell you what I think," said Private Wilkins, who was from "down east" somewhere. "I think he is one of these —— fine southern gentlemen who has joined the army and got sick of it. I'm sorry we ain't good enough for his nibs to associate with."

"You kape thut hole in yer face shut, will you?" remarked Finnerty in a threatening tone. "Oi won't hev anybody run 'im down behoind 'is back. Th' bye ain't stuck up. He's in trouble, an Oi'll lick th' mon thot says he is stuck up."

And Private Finnerty stalked off with great dignity to the post canteen. But Wilkins had unconsciously spoken the truth partly.

And so matters went on from day to day. The dreary monotony of scenery, the unchanging sameness of each day to the other and the routine of garrison life seemed to bear hardly upon Sergeant Stone. He became more restless, more sullen and morose. No letters came to him, and he wrote none. He was a complete mystery.

Three years before he had left his home in a southern state with the intention of making something of himself. And this was the outcome—a sergeant under an assumed name in the regular army with $15 a month pay!

And Adele! What if she knew? The last time they met it was a moonlight night. They sat on the wide gallery surrounding her home. The harvest moon poured a flood of silver light about them as they talked long and earnestly of the future. They had been sweethearts ever since they were children. The two places were adjoining, and they used to go to school together. He would carry her books for her and protect her from other boys when they attempted to tease her. And they had always said that when they grew up they would be married. But he fell into bad ways. Idleness, money to spend and bad associates had nearly ruined him, and now he was 25 years of age and had never worked a day in his life.

She promised to marry him if he would go away and make something of himself. She despised an idle man, she said, and she gave him two years to do it in. And he was not to write to her unless he achieved success.

"Will you be true, dearest?" he asked.

"As true as steel. It is my love for you that makes me impose these conditions on you. I want the man I marry to be something more than a mere drone. I want you, my love, to be looked up to and respected. I want you to go out in the world and wrest from it the living it owes you, and to make your own way alone and unaided, for the man who cannot take care of himself is not worthy to have a wife to care for."

"Well, so be it," answered he. "I leave tomorrow, and I won't come back until I have achieved something—until I have the respect of my fellow men and your confidence. I will succeed or die trying. And you will wait for me?"

"I have promised," she answered.

"Won't you sing just one more song for me before I go?" he asked.

"Yes, I will. I love it," she said, and she picked up a guitar, and touching the strings softly, caressingly, sang in a sweet, clear voice:

Say "au revoir," but not "goodby"—
Love lives still, Love cannot die.

As she finished, a mocking bird, wakened perhaps by the music and moonlight, began to pour forth its soul in melody from the recesses of a moss hung live oak.

"That is a bad omen, the negroes say—to hear a mocking bird sing at night," said Adele.

He took no notice of the remark, but asked slowly:

"Will you be true?"

She looked at him a moment and answered:

"Love cannot die."

And again the mocking bird sang from the moss hung tree.

And that was three years ago. He, true to the agreement, had struggled manfully for awhile to make his way and earn his reward. But he was weak in perseverance. He tried almost everything and gradually sank lower and lower. At last, half crazed with drink, he enlisted in the army and was sent to the plains of New Mexico.

* * * * * *

As he sat with his chin in his hands he looked across the waste of sand and pondered over his past. Too proud to go back and acknowledge himself whipped in the battle of life, he did not know what to do. An intense yearning to see Adele once more took possession of him.

"I'll write to her tomorrow," he thought, "and I'll get a furlough and go home for awhile. My God, but I must see her! I'll go crazy in this devil's country if I don't!"

The garrison had never seemed so hot and stuffy to him before. The hot yellow sand had never seemed so monotonous and blank, and life in the garrison had never been so abhorrent as it was then. He dreamily looked out the window and whistled softly:

Say "au revoir," but not "goodby."

Not a doubt entered his mind but that Adele was true.

"I can talk her over if she is still obstinate," thought he, "and I can buy my discharge. Then we will get married and live at the old place. She will at least give me credit for having done my best. Yes, I think I will go home."

His reveries were rudely disturbed by the sound of Private Finnerty's voice right under his window saying:

"Shure, an th' new major hov come ter take command iv us. He's been at a posht down south, hovin a foine, aisy toime av it. He fetched his wolfe wid 'im too. Dom me, but she's as pretty as a spotted purp. An she's got th' prettiest pair iv blue eyes that Oi iver saw. Oh, she's swate, sure."

Sergeant Stone moved away from the window still whistling softly. He was thinking of Adele—of home. He could see her sitting in the moonlight playing and singing. He could almost hear the wind as it rushed softly through the magnolia leaves or murmured sadly through the long gray festoons of Spanish moss. He thought of all the haunts of his boyish days and of his mother sleeping peacefully beneath the cedars in the lonely little burying ground on the hill. He remembered the path that he and Adele followed when they were children and went to school together. He wondered if she had changed and if she loved him as much as ever. The idea that she would cease loving him never entered his mind. She had said that she would always care for him, and that left not a doubt for him.

He spoke pleasantly to one of the soldiers who passed by, and that individual was so surprised that he could only stare.

"Something's a-going to happen," he said to the gang lounging about the canteen a few minutes later. "Stone's got civil all of a sudden." And they marveled greatly thereat.

Stone was granted his application for a furlough and got it indorsed by his captain, and then by the post commander, and late that afternoon he was informed that his leave was granted.

He was happy. He went about whistling and singing. He was going home and to Adele. After supper he had another attack of deep melancy. His soul was filled with doubts and fears and a horrible dread was gnawing at his heart.

"Suppose she"— But his heart would never allow him to finish the question. "She will be true," it said.

The moon rose in its full grandeur, and the mellow radiance silvered everything, toning down the rough prospect, until it seemed as though the path to an enchanted land was opened to him.

"Three years ago tonight since I saw Adele," he murmured to himself. "Well, it won't be long till I see her again."

It was growing late, and "taps" would soon sound. He went out for one last walk around the parade ground, and as he neared the major's house the distant tinkle of a guitar attracted his attention.

"The major's wife must be musical," he mused. Then he remembered that he had been told that the major had been married only a few months. He drew nearer to the house and listened. The player began to sing in a fresh girlish voice:

Say "au revoir," but not "goodby"—
Love lives still, Love cannot die.

He drew nearer, and the voice went on:

'Twere better far we'd ne'er met;
I loved you then—I love you yet.

Stone stood as one suddenly bereft of his senses. In the moonlight he saw a face he had not laid eyes upon for three long, dreary years—a face that he had hoped to see soon. And this was the end of it all! Still the voice went on with the lying words of that song.

"Adele, dear, I wish you would sing something else. I never liked that song," and the major smiled at his wife.

A figure in a dark blue uniform stood and listened as if spellbound. When the song was finished, Stone slunk, staggering, across the parade ground until he came to the barracks. He entered and climbed wearily up the steps.

A few moments later the clear notes of "taps" rang across the sandy waste. "Lights out," it meant.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He who feels contempt for any living thing hath faculties that he hath never used, and thought with him is in its infancy.—Wordsworth.

THE MUSCULAR SYSTEM

of every weary, thin or thin blooded person does its work with constant difficulty and fatigue. They feel "worn," or tired out, "run-down" or nervous.

Feeble people who are dyspeptic, find that exercise after a meal is sure to cause lessened power to digest food—because there is so little blood, and what there is, is carried off from the gastric organs to the muscles.

What is needed is plenty of blood, and that of the right kind. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and to gain in blood is nearly always to gain in wholesome flesh up to the healthy standard.

Every one should have a certain surplus of flesh to meet the emergencies of sickness; to resist the attack of consumption, grip, malaria and fevers. Thin blooded people are always getting sick, and none of the organs of the body can get along without the food they require for work, which is, pure blood. To gain and to keep strength and flesh is the secret of health, usefulness and happiness. With new blood and refreshed nerves a confident feeling of returning health comes also.

Nervous manifestations, such as sleeplessness, nervous debility and nervous prostration are in nine cases out of ten "the cry of the starved nerves for food." If you feed the nerves on pure rich blood the nervous symptoms will cease. It is bad practice to put the nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, coca compounds or malt extracts; what is needed is a blood maker. The "Discovery" is composed of vegetable ingredients which have an especial effect upon the stomach, liver, and blood making glands. For the cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, liver complaint, weakened vitality, and for puny, pale people, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cannot be equaled. Thousands have testified to its merits.

How Dr. Miles' Nervine Restored One of Kentucky's Business Men to Health.

NO DISEASE has ever prostrated so many people as LaGrippe. No disease leaves its victims so debilitated, useless, spiritless, nervous as LaGrippe.

Mr. D. W. Hilton, State agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Kentucky, says: "In 1892 and 93 I had two severe attacks of LaGrippe, the last one left me very nervous and weak. I was confined to my bed for more than two months, and the use of narcotics that stupefied me, but gave me no rest. I was a mere wreck of my former self, mental weakness, accompanied by pain and the fact that I was in a hopeless condition.

"When in this condition I commenced using Dr. Miles Restorative Nervine. In two days I began to improve and in one month's time I was cured. I owe it to the surprise of all who knew of my condition. I have been in excellent health since and have recommended your remedies to many of my friends."

Blood Poison

THE BANE OF HUMAN LIFE,

Driven Out of the System by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I was a great sufferer from a most persistent blood disease, none of the various medicines I took being of any help whatever. Hoping that change of climate would benefit me, I went to Cuba, to Florida, and then to Saratoga Springs, where I remained some time drinking the waters, but all was no use. At last, being advised by several friends to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I began taking it, and very soon favorable results were manifest. Today I consider myself a perfectly healthy man, with a good appetite and not the least trace of my former complaint. To all my friends, and especially young men like myself, I recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if in need of a perfectly reliable blood-purifier."—JOSÉ A. ...ISTED.

There Was Ice Cream to Be Frozen, and She Would Do It.

The invitations to Mrs. Wigglesworth's afternoon reception had been out a week, the front parlor was becomingly set off with asparagus green and the brightness of autumn leaves, and it looked as if the thing was going to be one of the nicest social events of the season.

"They'll begin coming at 4 o'clock," Mrs. Wigglesworth said at dinner, "and everything is ready but the ice cream. You'll have to send up a man for that."

"I'd like to know what for?" said Mr. Wigglesworth.

"Why, to freeze it, of course," explained his wife. "It's awfully hard work turning the crank an hour."

"Humph!" grumbled Mr. Wigglesworth, who held a man's opinions concerning an afternoon function. "Seems to me you and that hired girl might find time to twist a galvanized iron crank around a few minutes without subjecting me to extra expense. Want to ruin me?"

"Ellery Wigglesworth," returned his wife severely, "do you think I am going to put on my best dress and freeze ice cream while the first ladies in town are arriving every minute and having to be talked to?"

"B-a-a-h-h-h!" commented Mr. Wigglesworth. "Where is this freezer? I'll show you how to make a dollar."

Down in the cellar Mrs. Wigglesworth had got everything ready. There was the freezer, borrowed of a neighbor, duly filled with six quarts of liquid, and there were ice and salt and other things necessary. Mr. Wigglesworth loaded the salt and ice into the wooden cylinder and gave the crank a few preliminary revolutions.

"Don't see anything the matter with this, do you?" he asked. "Don't know's you like to have a dollar saved. Rather make folks think you'd spent a fortune probably."

Merrily twirled the crank, while Mrs. Wigglesworth crowded in some more pounded ice.

"Regular picnic, this is," said Mr. Wigglesworth, "side of the old churn I used to work when I was a boy. Mother used to keep me at it all the time. Said that one good churn deserved another—he, he, ha!"

"What did she mean by that?" Mrs. Wigglesworth innocently asked.

"What did she mean by that?" tartly retorted Mr. Wigglesworth, whose muscles began to feel it. "What does anybody mean by anything? Can't you understand a joke when it's shown to you?"

"I don't see any joke in your mother saying that one good churn deserved another," Mrs. Wigglesworth persisted. "If she had one churn, I should think that would be nice, but how could it deserve"—

"Ya-a-h-h!" snarled Mr. Wigglesworth, grinding savagely away, "what's the use to try and have any fun with you? You couldn't see a joke if it was pasted on the end of the Lick telescope. Quit jamming in that ice," he shouted as the machine went a trifle harder. "Want to stop the things?"

"It ain't me," Mrs. Wigglesworth mildly rejoined. "It's the cream beginning to harden."

"Great lot you know about it!" grumbled her husband, pausing to wipe the perspiration from his brow.

Mrs. Wigglesworth said she must now go and "dress," and with a few encouraging words vanished up the stairs. Mr. Wiggleworth turned on, pausing now and then to mop off his forehead and mutter things to himself.

Every man of a weak and yielding nature who has allowed himself—once—to be bound to the chariot wheels of the ice cream freezer can recall with ghastly clearness how the lemon colored mixture on the interior of the tin can after reaching a certain degree of hardness, appears to be content to remain there. Round and round spun the handle. Mr. Wigglesworth, pausing at intervals to gloomily contemplate the growing blisters on the palms of his hands.

Overhead he could hear the shuffling of feet as visitors arrived and went stiffly through the ceremonies of introduction.

"Oh, Ellery," hoarsely wailed Mrs. Wigglesworth, rushing half way down the stairs, "can't you hurry up? Everybody's coming, and it's dreadful to give them only tea, and they are looking around and wondering what the table is for with dishes on it and no ice cream!"

"What y'et s'pose I care?" returned Mr. Wigglesworth, wanting to yell, but forced to keep his voice under. "Think I've got nothing to do but prance around here twisting a blamed old hand organ? You go on back and shake hands with the rest of them false crimp females, will you, and let me alone!"

"What is that singular rumbling noise?" asked one of the guests a little later.

"I—I don't hear anything," faltered Mrs. Wigglesworth, forcing a distorted smile into her face.

"I hear something," said another guest, a thin, little woman, with an inquisitive nose. "Hark!"

The roomful of ladies congealed into silence. There was small need of Mrs. Wigglesworth's dissimulation. From beneath their feet, muffled by the carpeted floor, came a strange series of noises, the hum of machinery, it might be punctuated by a grunting sound as of a railroad engine getting under way, and now and then a thud like a man falling out of a balloon and alighting on the roof of a Presbyterian church.

"Burglars!" the little one cried a fat woman in a red dress. "They're boring their way in through the cellar wall!" And she stood up in a chair.

Then, just as everybody was turning pale and getting ready to talk all at once, the mixture which for two hours had gone on making Mr. Wigglesworth madder suddenly went thick, and the dasher, revolving slower, quickly exhausted his remaining strength.

"Gash flummux the old thing!" he yelled, losing all regard for the society event overhead. "What ails it now?" And he twitched the machine savagely across the cellar floor. "Why don't you twist around here, same's you been doing since I tackled you last spring?" he hollowed, and he flung it against the granite wall. "Want to keep me here grinding this old crank till Christmas, don't you?" And he knocked down one of the furnace pipes with it. "But I want you to understand!"—he howled in a finishing blaze of wrath as the falling pipe struck his head and emptied a load of soot on him.

And grabbing an ax he stove in the freezer's metallic head. To his surprise, he found the cream frozen beautifully.—W. O. Fuller, Jr., in New York Recorder.

One or the Other, Sure.

Smith—What do you think of the man? I believe he's a liar.

Jones—Well, I don't know. At least he struck me as a very strong minded person.

Brown—Well, he's one or the other. He told me yesterday that he took a cold bath every morning the whole year round!—Chicago Record.

Expense of Traveling Salesmen.

The traveling expenses of the commercial salesmen of the country foot up over $200,000,000 a year, and their total salaries and commissions probably amount to about $450,000,000. But these great sums, making together $750,000,000, would not begin to pay for the cost and loss of time that would result were we to return to the old system of letting the customers do the traveling and visit the wholesalers in person. A good deal of pleasure, however, has been lost out of life by the change of methods. The retailer used to enjoy his occasional trips to the great cities to buy goods, while his daily life on the road is a bore to the drummer.

CAR WINDOWS SMASHED

Much Excitement on the Orange County Express—A Lady's Head Cut by Flying Glass—A Speculative Lawyer Takes the Woman in Charge.

Yesterday morning, when the Erie's Orange County Express was nearing Chester, the passengers in one of the cars were startled by a loud crash and the sound of broken glass. A freight train was passing on the west bound track and it is supposed that something—a chain or rod, or possibly a timber had become loose and swung against the side of the passenger coach. Two windows in the car were broken. A lady, a Mrs. Brewster, of Paterson, and her little child occupied a seat by one of the broken windows and a piece of the flying glass struck her in the side of the head, inflicting a wound from which the blood flowed quite freely. Such was the force with which the glass was struck that a fragment flew across the car and broke a window on the opposite side.

There was great excitement in the car for a time until it was ascertained that Mrs Brewster's wound was a slight one.

Conductor Dolson telegraphed particulars of the accident to Jersey City and a physician was directed to board the train at Suffern, but when he arrived the lady refused to have anything to do with him.

This action on the part of the woman was the result of the interference of a young lawyer on board the train, who, seeing the possibility of a speculative law suit for damages, rushed to the woman immediately after the accident and began an earnest conversation with her, which he kept up until she left the train at Paterson

The passengers saw the point to the lawyer's solicitude for the victim of the accident and his action excited very considerable criticism.

FELL FROM A CAR

An O and W Trainman Injured at Campbell Hall.

George W. DeWitt, of this city, a brakeman on O. and W. train 21, fell from the top of a box car while switching at Campbell Hall, this morning He received what is believed to be only a bad bruise on the side of the head, besides several slight bruises about the body

Mr. DeWitt was brought to this city and taken to Thrall Hospital.

Blew Out a Cylinder Head.

The engine of the Orange County Express blew out a cylinder head at the North street crossing, this morning The report was so loud that it was heard for blocks and a crowd collected in a few minutes. Engineer Wood disconnected the broken side and after twenty minutes' delay started for New York, using only one cylinder.

Picked Up by a Fender.

A Paterson trolley car crashed into a carriage containing three persons, Saturday evening, wrecking it and throwing the occupants into the street. The fender attached to the car picked them all up and saved them from serious injury and perhaps death

An Old Man Badly Injured by a Fall.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Clergymen May Have Half-Fare Tickets.

Eastern railroad presidents are formulating a new agreement for 1896, and it is probable provision will be made for restoring half-rate fares to clergymen. If this concession is made strict precaution will be taken to prevent the abuse of the privilege which led to its abrogation.
